The present manuscript is very well legible and quite complete, being as most medical manuscripts of the period a compilation made from various works; the bulk of the text is formed by the "Arzneibuch des Meisters Bartholomaeus," which is given here in 2 versions somewhat different from each other both as regards the arrangement and the wording of the text. Master Bartholomew's medical book has been published by F. Pfeiffer, from a Bavarian manuscript written about the middle of the 13th Century, and once preserved in the monastery of Tegernsee (now cod. germ. 92 of the Bavarian State Library; cf. Sitzungs-Ber. d. phil. hist. Classe der Kais. Akad. d. Wiss., vol. 42, p. 110 seq.). The work is a translation of a Latin book, which in its turn was compiled from various Greek authors and from other sources. According to Pfeiffer this magister Bartholomaeus is identical with the Franciscan Friar, Barth. Anglicus, author of the well-known work, "De proprietatibus rerum" (about

1250). Hirsch biogr. Lex. d. hervorrag. Aerzte VI., 455, refers to him as one Bartholomaeus Salernitanus, disciple of Constantinus Africanus. See also Haupt, über das mitteldeutsche Arzneibuch des Meisters Bartholomaeus, Sitz.—Ber. d. Wiener Akademie, Wien, 1872, LXXI., separately.

The whole of the text is divided into 384 chapters, the chief sections being as follows:

1. Leaf 1 ro.—10 vo., line 12: Diss ist von den schlechten wonden dye ane Lid debrochen sint von dem hewbte (Chapt. 1–41).
2. Leaf 10 vo.—line 13–24 vo., line 19: Diss synt salben von allen wonden (Chapt 42–147).
3. Leaf 24 vo.—line 20–61 ro., line 10: Hye sagit vnss diss buch von dem meyster Bartholomeo vnd von dem harme (sic) (Chapt. 148–277).
4. Leaf 61 ro.—line 11–69 ro., line 27: Vonder naturen der elementin (Chapt. 278–301).
5. Leaf 69 ro.—line 1–100 vo., line 7: Magister Bartholomeus. Dis buch dychte syn meynster der hiss sich Bartholomeus (Chapt 302–365).
6. Leaf 100 vo.—line 8–118 vo., line 8: Virtutes herbarum. Der Kruetter crafft (Chapt. 366–384).
7. Leaf 119 ro.—and vo.: Two full-page coloured pen-and-ink drawings.
8. Leaf 120 ro.—135 ro.—line 15: Register.
